MAY, 1942.

To the Convener and Members of the County Council of Clackmannan.

Gentlemen,

We beg to submit for your consideration a Report on housing conditions in the Landward Area of the County.

Although house building is at a standstill and we realise that Government Policy may be somewhat changed after the war, we nevertheless feel that some preparation for the solution of the housing problem can now be usefully undertaken.

With this in view, we bring forward an aspect of the problem which we feel is at the basis of the whole matter, namely, the assessment of needs as regards unfit houses.

The state of overcrowding is purposely omitted as, at the moment, this is fluid and will not become stable until after the cessation of hostilities when an overcrowding survey should be undertaken.

The urgency of dealing with particular areas; sites for building; method to be adopted under the Housing Acts, i.e. Clearance or Re-development Areas are some aspects of the problem which might be considered now. You may even think it desirable in order to satisfy yourselves regarding the houses in this report to visit some of them.

Although the record of house building by the Council during the past 20 years, as is seen in this report, has been noteworthy, we are convinced that delays previously experienced must be lessened considerably in order to overtake and properly control the problem. To achieve this, a still bolder housing policy will be necessary.

We are, Gentlemen,
Your obedient Servants,

J. A. Roughead, Medical Officer of Health
D. Wood, Sanitary Inspector.

Public Health Department,
County Buildings,
ALLOA.

May, 1942.

INTRODUCTION.

This Report is the result of a survey of the worst houses in the County Landward Area carried out by us from November, 1941 to January, 1942.

In it we consider only the factors which render a house unfit for human habitation and do not take into account overcrowding.

Houses that are owner occupied and a number in isolated situations have been excluded.

The condition of each house visited was noted and it was placed in one of the following groups, viz:-

- Group I. Dwelling houses which are, by reason of dis-repair or sanitary defects, unfit for human habitation.
- Group II. Houses in which reconstruction might be accepted as an alternative to demolition.

By "reconstruction" we mean a radical process involving extensive structural alterations.

We visited 442 working class houses details of which are shown in the accompanying Schedule. These houses we grouped as follows:-

Group I.	403
Group II.	39
	442

As a result of the Survey, we are of opinion that the County Council as part of a long term policy should make provision in the first instance for the erection of 450 houses.

HOUSING IN RETROSPECT.

Dr. T. G. Nasmyth, then Medical Officer of Health for the County, in his annual report for the year 1893 states "there is a large proportion of very defective houses in the County, and I have had meetings and numerous communications about a considerable number of this kind, but while promises have been very fair, performance has not been so gratifying as I could have wished.....The houses I specially refer to at the present time are situated in the village of Sauchie and these I propose should be dealt with first."

This statement regarding housing conditions in the County 49 years ago applies today with equal force.

In 1896 a row of houses at Menstrie was inspected by the Medical Officer of Health who stated that they were old, damp and quite worn out and could not be improved without reconstruction.

A year later reference is made by Dr. Nasmyth in his annual report to certain houses at Sauchie which closely resembled slums. These houses were very old, low lying and damp and some of the sleeping rooms had only borrowed light/light and no means of ventilation by fireplace or air shaft.

Houses at the "Dam" near Monstric are mentioned in the 1898 Report as very much in need of repair, being old, damp and worn out with defective water supply and sanitary conveniences.

The need for Building Bye-laws was stressed by the M.O.H. in his 1899 Report where a note is also made of two houses condemned at Tullibody.

The lack of proper domestic facilities is brought to the notice of the reader of the 1902 Report where the M.O.H. states that "very great nuisance is caused by the kitchen being used as a washing, sleeping and cooking room." This is also stressed in the following year's Report.

In the annual report for 1907 it is stated "The houses in the County have improved and are still improving, the tendency being to erect houses of a better type than formerly. This improvement is partly due to the regulations for new houses which demand a higher standard than formerly and partly due to the demand of the working classes themselves to have better houses."

In 1911, a Special Report by Dr. Crawford, then M.O.H., on the Housing of Miners in the County was prepared. While the latter half of this Report is specially applicable to the Landward Area, we feel that it contains so much of general interest that it is quoted verbatim.

"It is both of general interest and has a special bearing on the subject of this report that the mining of coal in the County is of ancient date. Here, as early as anywhere in Scotland were mining operations undertaken on modern lines.

Writing in 1812, Mr. Robert Bald, Engineer in Alloa, reports that some of the collieries were then of 200 years standing. At that date 130,000 tons of coal were annually delivered from the County. 300 men and their families were employed. The general wage of colliers was 4/6d. per day, coal being 9/- to 11/- per ton.

He remarks that in 1715 the collier's wage was 1/2 per day and coal was delivered free on board ships in the Forth at 4/8 per ton.

In this County the coal was worked by the Earl of Mar prior to 1700 and at about the year 1710 the dam at Gartnorn, now a reservoir for Alloa Water Supply was made for the purposes of the Colliery as a reservoir for water-power.

A glimpse of the housing conditions of these days is given by Mr. Robert Bald in a report. In the pits women used to act as "bearers", carrying the coal from the face to the pit-foot, and in shallow pits, to the pit-head.

Writing in 1840, the Minister of the Parish says - "As to the condition of the colliers a great improvement has taken place since the women were delivered from the disgraceful/disgraceful slavery of bearing the coals.....From the circumstances of the wives remaining at home..... the houses are more comfortable..... and the whole style of living has been improved."

Though it has little to do with the present report, one cannot help noting that these women carried loads of 170 lbs. 150 yards to the pit bottom and up 117 ft. of stairs 24 times in the day for the sum of 8d! It is well that this was long ago abolished. Bald notes that in their absence the children were in charge of an old woman who fed them on "ale or whisky mixed with water." The infantile mortality was high. Further details will be found in Bald's report.

The men, it is to be remembered, were "serfs" and "thirled" to the pits. They and their children were bought and sold with the land. This condition of slavery was only abolished in 1799.

Somewhere about the beginning of last century, the pits formerly worked by the Earl of Mar were finally formed into a commercial concern, which existed, with varying fortune, till 1898 when the present Alloa Coal Company, Ltd. was formed.

In the County there are but two coal companies - The Alloa Coal Coy., above noted, and another much smaller concern owning but one pit, Messrs. Fyfe & Coy. The companies, the number of pits pertaining to each, and the number of men thus employed, are shown below:-

ALLOA COAL COMPANY, LTD.

	Men.
Devon Colliery	439
Alloa Collieries (3)	238
Tillicoultry Colliery	69
Sheriffyards Colliery	437
Brucefield Colliery	59
	1242

MESSRS. FYFE & COMPANY, LTD.

Tullygarth Colliery	126
Total Men Employed	1368

These pits are situated midway between the Forth and the Hillfoots, and with one exception, are all within two miles of Alloa.

It is found, therefore, that while the greater number of workers live as near to their work as may be, yet a good many prefer the social advantages of a Burgh; and, with the exception of Dollar, all the Burghs are thus patronised.

The following table gives the number of house-holders returned as "miners" in each Burgh on the Valuation Roll, and the lowest and highest rents:-

Alloa	17.	£4: 4/-	£13
Alva	79.	£2:10/-	£10
Tillicoultry	43.	£2	£12

The :

The remainder of miners are housed in the landward "suburbs" of Alloa (Sauchie, etc.), the villages of Fishcross, Coalsnaughton, Devonside and Clackmannan, or in various smaller "rows" at varying distances from their work.

But the population of these places is by no means exclusively mining; the neighbouring Burghs have various industries and many of their employees also form part of the landward population, besides a few agricultural workers. The number of miners' households in the landward district is, so far as I can guess, 460 or so.

Approaching then the real purpose of the report, it will be well to consider first the housing conditions of those miners who reside in the Burghs. The houses they occupy, often owned by themselves, are of rents varying from £2 to £13 and the average is above £4. These houses are, as a rule, 2-roomed, a few being 3-roomed or larger. None belong to or are leased by the Coal Companies.

Nothing can be noted, as a rule, against their structural condition. The average rent paid is well above that paid in the landward districts of the County; and it is found that these houses are by no means restricted to the oldest and poorest portions of the Burgh, but that few are there to be found.

While I have not been able to inspect each house, I have no doubt that so far as structure and situation are concerned they may be perfectly satisfactory, and none at least need immediate attention under the Housing Acts.

It is concluded therefore that, as a rule, the tenants are men of reputation for character, steadiness and industry who, for their own reasons, perhaps educational have preferred residence in a Burgh. At all events, no criticism can be made of their conditions of housing which will not be common to that of the general prosperous workers of the locality.

Turning now to the Housing conditions in the Landward parts of the County, a different state of affairs is found. The average rent paid is lower than that in the Burghs and the houses as a rule less satisfactory.

The extra-Burghal centres of population are Clackmannan, Sauchie, Devonside and Coalsnaughton. These are all mentioned in old records and have doubtless been in existence for about 300 years, the houses being gradually rebuilt and renewed at different periods. The class of house used by the miners at this date is the same in all the places mentioned, generally speaking, and in the smaller "rows" dotted about the coal-bearing district. It is the type usual in Scotland - a house of stone, roofed with tiles, of one floor, with a "room" on one side of the doorway and on the other a kitchen, occasionally a third room opens off one of these. Usually one family occupies the two rooms, but rarely, there is a household in each. The general practice is for the houses to belong to the Coal Company and for the rent to be arranged as a deduction from the miner's wage. A few houses belong to individuals, and very rarely the owner is the occupier.

Reporting broadly upon the sanitary condition of these places, I think there is no doubt that great improvement is generally possible and in many instances there are obvious faults. It will be best to consider separately the common unsatisfactory points.

DAMPNESS appears to be very often present, both in walls, roof and floor. The causes are obvious; very often it is found that the kitchen and sometimes both rooms are paved with square bricks sunk in the ground, without proper drainage and where there are wooden floors provided, they are often not high enough and not at all or quite inadequately ventilated beneath; thus they are apt to dry-rot and fall away in parts, the holes left being treacherously covered with layers of linoleum. Dampness of roof and walls arises from broken or unpainted roof-tiles, faulty chimney flashings and absence of rones.

WANT OF LIGHT AND VENTILATION:- The windows are usually too small and sometimes only one opens and that as to one sash alone. There is still even in fine weather a great reluctance to make use of fresh air, though its value is usually admitted.

SANITARY ARRANGEMENTS:- Little criticism is needed on this head. In scavenging districts things are going on satisfactorily. In some "rows" however there is insufficient closet accommodation and there is a difficulty as to fixing the responsibility for keeping closets clean.

Remarking generally upon the indoor arrangements of the houses, one is glad to note that there are now no "box-beds"; there are however usually two beds built on wooden frames and separated by a partition end to end along one of the walls; often these have "curtains" of boarding at head and foot and from above depends a strip of boarding or chintz. It is impossible to ventilate such places properly.

There is too often a lack of cupboard or wardrobe accommodation and there seems never to be a suitable cool larder where milk and meat may be kept sweet.

While many houses in the County require only some slight remark in perhaps one of the above directions yet there are only too many which are faulty in all, and a few which can only be called very unsatisfactory.

As to the manner in which the houses are kept, it is very easy to criticise; but doubtless a minor's wife with a family to attend to, washing to do, and meals to cook, has not too much leisure for polishing and dusting. Still even those who seem to have leisure do not seem to appreciate over much the advantages of cleanliness either of house or children. They have as much leisure and as good houses (as a rule) as the fisher-folk of East Fife, for instance, but a comparison is by no means to their advantage.

There are of course both extremes; a good house is sometimes made repulsive by hopeless lack of care and sometimes the faultiest home is made by careful housewifery, a treat at least to the eye. But probably the general standard might be much improved.

As/

As to the situation, almost all houses line a public road or a short branch of one. This leads to dustiness and the use of the road as a playground for the children. One cannot but regret that it had not been possible to leave a margin of space either in grass or as garden ground. No one would deny the aesthetic or economic benefit of such a provision.

The outstanding reason for this unsatisfactory state of affairs appears to be involved in the facts noted in the historical introduction to this report. The coal industry here is of very ancient date and there seems no doubt that it will not long continue. No new houses have been erected, except in the outskirts of Burghs, for perhaps fifteen years. The coal workings are approaching exhaustion and the Coal Companies are unwilling to spend money now. If houses become uninhabitable it pays better to close them, or they are merely patched in a temporary way, where they need perhaps almost complete renewal. Already, it appears the Alloa Coal Company are beginning to draft workers to their newer pits elsewhere and should any radical structural alterations be required under the Housing Acts, it seems probable that the houses most at fault will be closed and the workers removed to a busier district.

And, while we regret the loss of industry to this County, it must be admitted that there are more than a few dwellings which, if they are not to be completely renovated, would be safer uninhabited.

I had prepared a few remarks dealing with the effect of these housing conditions upon the disease and death rates. It seems, however, upon reflection that such conclusions would be of no value. The mining population forms but a fraction of the total landward population of the County and even that is too small to allow of trustworthy results."

Reference is made in the 1916 Annual Report to "groups of workmen's dwellings in Clackmannan without sanitary accommodation or other conveniences and otherwise unsatisfactory for human habitation at present there is a marked lack of housing accommodation in the County and the standard is everywhere low."

A Special Report in 1917 by Mr Scott, Sanitary Inspector, showed the want of housing accommodation in Tullibody and Menstrie and that generally there were a great many houses in need of considerable improvement.

Following upon that report the Council decided in 1919 to build 30 houses at Sauchie, 16 at Clackmannan, 18 at Tullibody and 12 at Menstrie. It was not till 1923, however, that most of these houses were completed.

A perusal of subsequent reports indicates the need for more houses and that the County Council appreciated this is shown by the following table which gives the number of houses built by the Council since they commenced building operations:-

Reference to the Registrar General's estimate of population (year 1939) shows that the population then was 2% less than that of 1921. The number of inhabited houses in 1921 was 2401 and as will be evident from the above table the Council have built since then, 1116 houses equivalent to 46% of the 1921 number, a very creditable achievement.

EXISTING HOUSING CONDITIONS.

(a) General conditions encountered:-

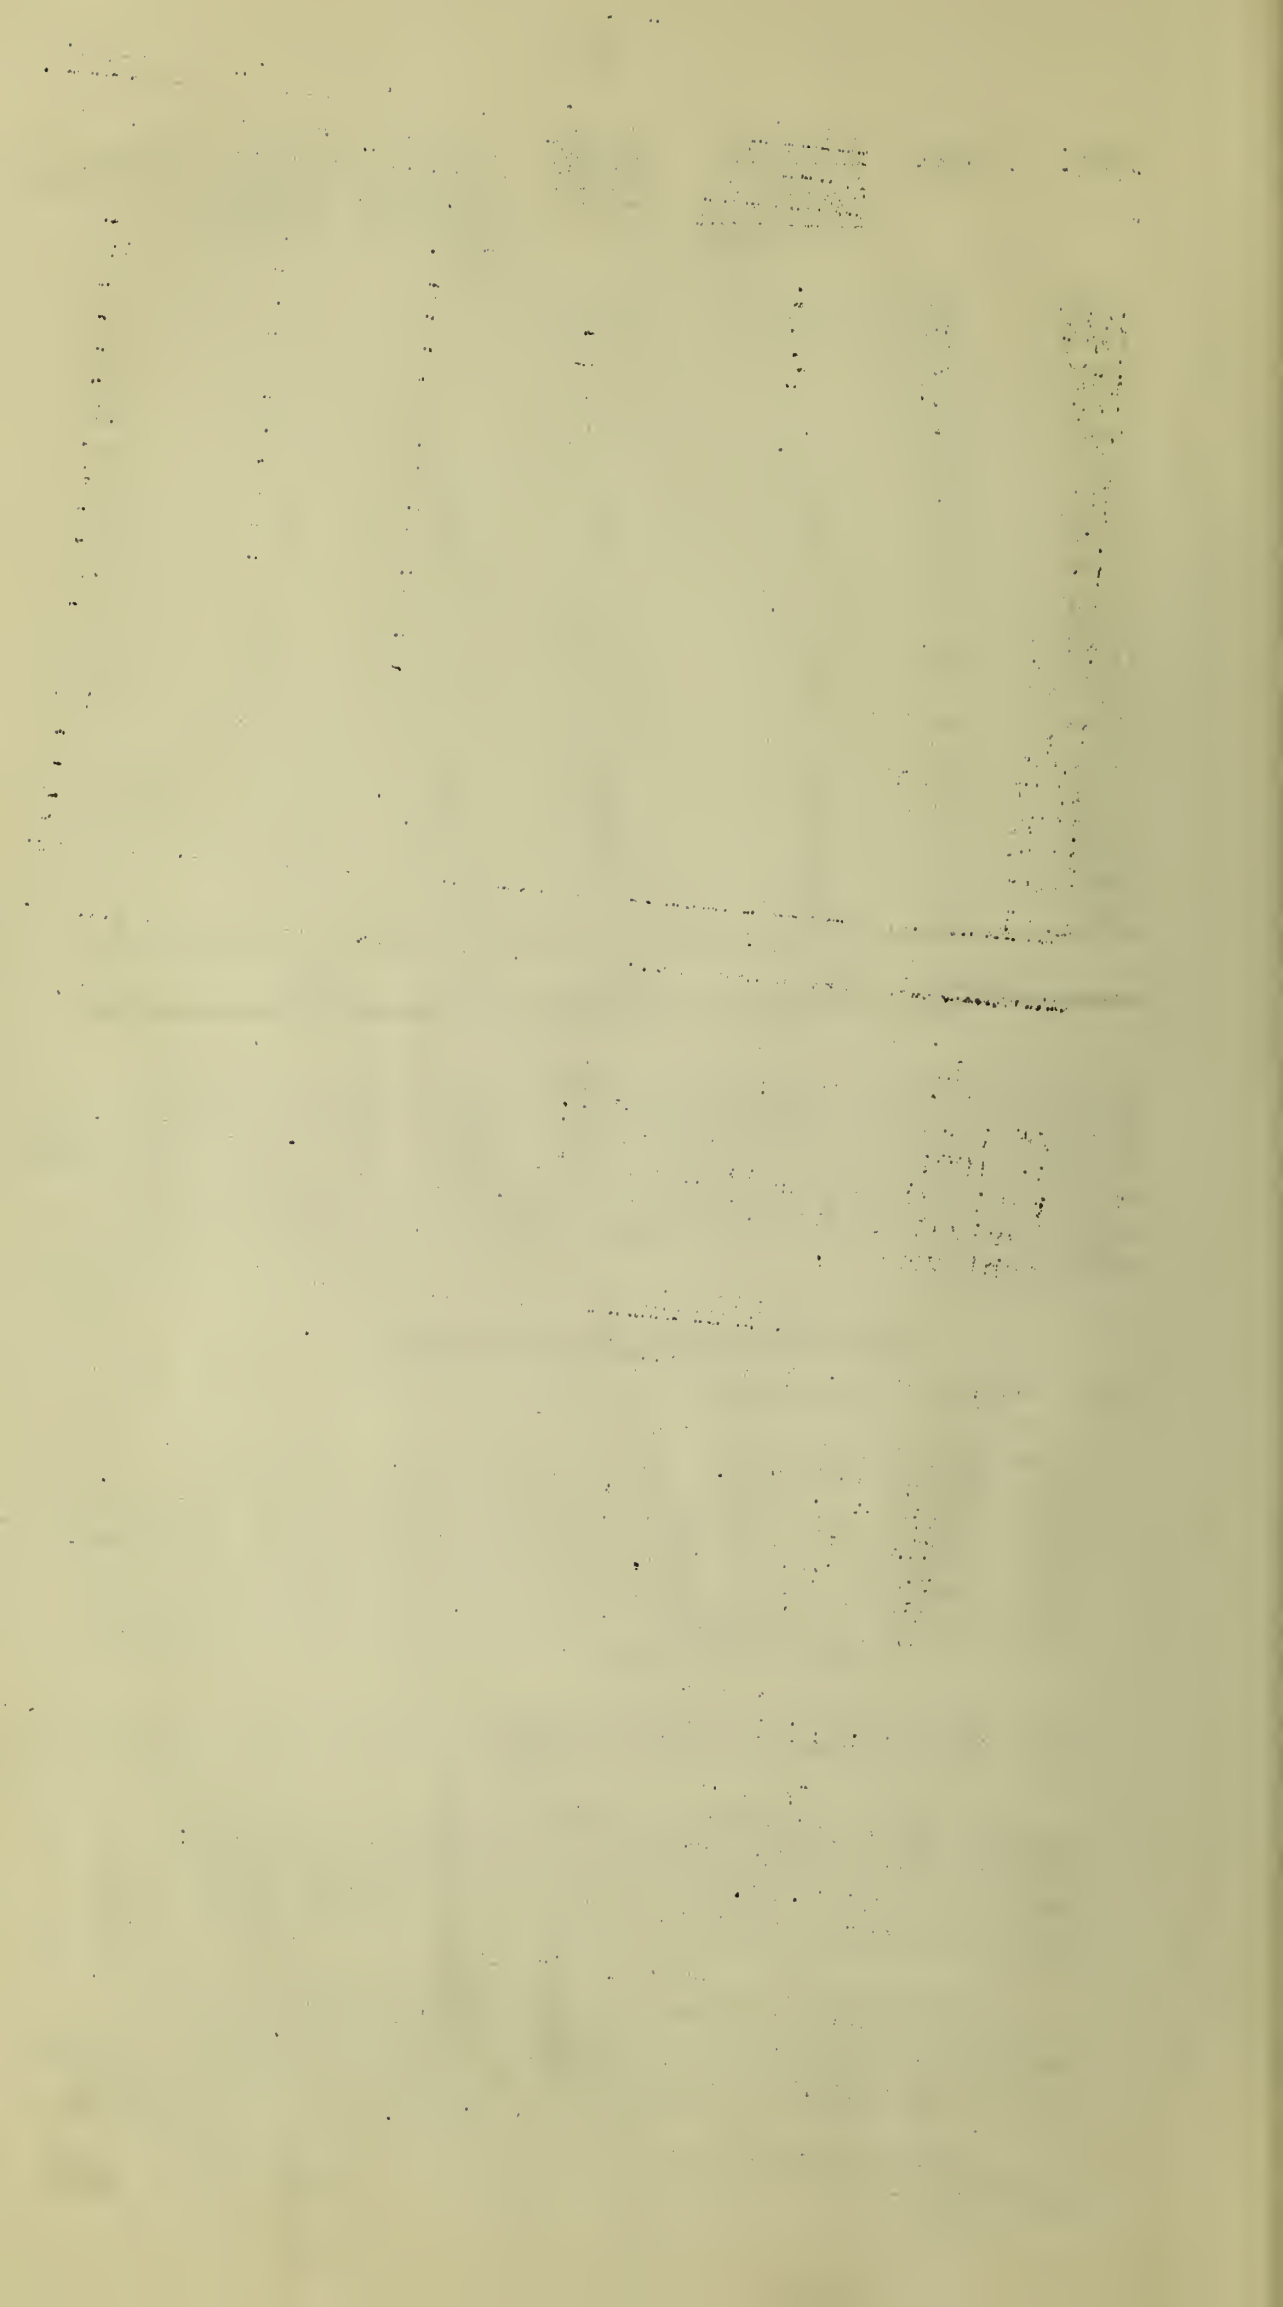

Externally there are two main types of houses encountered. The one shows evidence of dilapidation which is borne out when internal inspection is made. The other is the stone built property which, on outward inspection, appears reasonably sound, but when the inside is examined almost all the major defects of a bad house are found.

A proportion of the houses are congested on site, with high ground level at back.

In some instances where paving is absent the ground about the houses is a quagmire in winter; water is often obtained from the communal stand pipe and w.c.s. are shared and badly placed; outhouses in many cases are tumbling down.

Internally almost all the houses are badly arranged and have no secondary means of access. Rooms intercommunicate and cooking and bathing is carried out in the living room where recessed beds are common.

The absence of sinks, cupboard accommodation and pantries/pantries is noted. Dampness is present in the walls of all the houses which in some cases are soaking. Floors and ceilings are defective. Proper through ventilation in many instances is lacking and poor natural lighting is a marked feature in many districts.

(b) Description of unfit houses:-

Only the briefest description of the more outstanding properties is possible, but a detailed list is given in the attached schedule. This description deals with the major defects only and should not be taken as a complete statement of all the facts which justify our classification of the houses.

Note: The reference letters refer to the schedule accompanying the Report.

SAUCHIE:-

Sauchie, because of its proximity to Alloa, has taken on in some degree the characteristics of a Burghal Area as evidenced by the marked congestion on site of the older properties practically all of which are unfit for human habitation.

Crandra Row, A1 - A44.

This consists of two parallel rows of brick built miners cottages, separated by an unmade roadway, 33'0" wide. The brickwork is perished in places and under-floor ventilation is in decay. The w.c.s. are shared and are in view of the main road, wash-houses are in disrepair and water for all the tenants is procured from three stand pipes. There is no secondary means of access for the houses.

With four exceptions, the houses consist of two intercommunicating rooms, floors are shaky and walls are very damp. Recessed beds are common in the livingroom and proper domestic facilities are absent.

These houses should be demolished.

Fig. I gives some impression of the general appearance of the area.

Fig. I

49-53 Main Street, H1 - H13.

This is a very congested back area with houses about 200 years old. Five feet from the front of the houses, which have no secondary means of access, there is a low wall. The w.c.s. are shared and the wash-houses are dilapidated. Some of the houses are single ends with low ceilings and all are dark and ill-ventilated.

These are all Group I. houses.

FIG. 2.

Figures 2 and 3 give an impression of the congestion at the front and back of this area.

FIG. 3

92 - 94 Main Street, C5 - C7.

This property, although condemned some years ago, has been re-occupied by squatters. It is completely done and conditions are deplorable.

1 - 5 Hall Terrace, Q1 - Q5.

This is a row of five houses and our notes show that/that externally they are tidy and neat. Inside, however, stone floors are present in one of the two rooms in each house. There is no through ventilation and walls are damp. There is no water in the houses, pantry and proper cooking facilities are absent. Outside w.c.s. are shared. Group I.

Fig. 4 shows a pleasing aspect of part of Main Street, Sauchie.

FIG. 4.

CAMBUS.

Devon Place, L1 - L4.

These are very old houses, the tenants of which obtain water from a stand pipe. Three of them have no secondary means of access. In some cases there are stone floors, walls are damp and rooms are dark and ill-ventilated. The houses are worn out. Group I.

TULLIBODY.

South Street, DD1 - DD6.

These houses are very old and the fabric is in an advanced state of decay. All the factors which go to make an unfit house are present here in abundance. Group I.

North Street, II1 - II6.

The preceding remarks apply here with almost equal force although an inside water supply is present. In the lintel of some windows, the date 1706 is marked. Group I.

MENSTRIE.

Brook Street, A9 - A24.

The majority of these houses are very old and one window lintel bears the date 1719. Some are built into the hillside, walls are damp and ceilings are low.

Internally the houses are badly arranged and lack ordinary domestic facilities. They have long outlived their period of usefulness and should be demolished.

Figs./

FIG. 5.

FIG. 6.

Figures 5 and 6 give front and back views of the property and may be contrasted with Fig. 7 of County Council houses in Menstrie

FIG. 7.

Glenochil Terrace, D1 - D6.

This property consists of "back-to-back" houses with the defects resulting therefrom. The shell, however, is reasonably sound and we think that radical reconstruction might/might be considered. They are, therefore, placed in Group II.

COALSNAUGHTON & DEVONSIDE.

Bain Street, F1 - F10.

This is a brick row with slated roof. Paving is absent and there is no secondary means of access. Water closets are shared. All of these houses except one consist of two intercommunicating rooms. There is no water supply in the houses and pantries are absent. Floors are defective and walldamp is present. These are all classed as Group I.

52 Alexandra Street.

This forms part of a property in respect of which a demolition order was issued on 18/4/35. It is a basement house and the rest of the property is derelict. There is no through ventilation, walls are damp and out-houses are tumbling down. An earth closet still exists. Group I.

SHEARDALE.

Sheardale Village, E1 - E8.

Our notes on a representative house of this row show no secondary means of access. The living room has a stone floor and walls are damp. Walldamp is also marked in the other rooms and there is no food store and ordinary domestic facilities are absent. The water supply for the tenants of all these houses is obtained from a well about half a mile distant.

The whole row is in fact worn out and should be demolished.

CLACKMANNAN.

Mary Place, A1 - A7.

This is a brick built row with poor tiled roofs in an advanced state of decay. It slopes down considerably from the main road. There is no paving and deep ruts have been formed by the rain. Some of the houses have no secondary means of access. Two w.cs. and one poor wash-house serve the row. Walls are splashing, floors have irregular flags, rooms are damp and proper domestic facilities are absent. All are Group I. houses.

Russell Place, B1 - B10.

This is a stone built tenement with poor tiled roof. The court is unpaved and the ground level at the back is above the floor level of the downstairs houses. The stonework is pitted and the stairs are dangerous. One stand pipe serves all the houses and there are two w.cs. for 10 tenants. Downstairs houses are dark with intercommunicating rooms and damp walls. There is no pantry and proper domestic facilities are lacking. Plaster work is broken in places throughout the property and stone floors/floors are present in some of the ground floor houses.

Upstairs, similar defects exist, although walls are not so damp. Floors are shaky and roofs are leaking.

All are Group I houses, but the sites might be considered for re-development.

The Square, C1 - C7.

This is a derelict "slum" which is partly occupied although condemned some years ago. The site might be re-developed as it adjoins a housing scheme.

Fig. 8 shows a typical part of the area.

FIG. 8.

The Green, D1 - D13.

These houses are stone built and slated and most are of two intercommunicating apartments. The rooms are dark and ill-ventilated and walls are damp. Water is obtained from a stand pipe in the street and sanitary conveniences are shared. Ordinary domestic facilities do not exist and general neglect is apparent. Group I.

KENNET.

Kennet Cottages, 01 - 04.

These have been substantial houses in their day, but new walls are very damp throughout and flagged floors are prevalent. Proper domestic facilities are lacking. All Group I.

Kennet Village, 05 - 012.

There are 20 houses in this row, 12 of which are owner occupied and do not come within the scope of this survey. Eight are scheduled as Group I.

The main defects are general dampness throughout and presence of stone floors, with bad arrangement of some of the rooms. There is no water in the houses in some cases and proper domestic facilities are absent.

Squatters.

In the course of our survey a number of Squatters were found/found in Sauchie, Clackmannan and Menstrie living in houses previously condemned. Conditions were in most of these cases very bad. We know that this presents a particularly difficult problem, but are of opinion that it should be squarely faced, the people rehoused and the houses demolished at once or rendered incapable of being further used as dwellings.

County Council Housing Schemes.

A number of houses in schemes of the County Council were inspected and with one or two exceptions they were found well kept.

There were, however, a few tenants whose houses were filthy. These people have had an opportunity to associate with those who are reasonably clean and have not profited thereby. Indeed their presence is rightly resented by their neighbours. This is a problem with rehousing schemes generally and we are of opinion that dealing with it by legal proceedings alone is not completely effective. In an effort to avoid or lessen the risk of this happening, we would suggest that the County Council's future policy should be to provide, in carefully selected areas, a number of houses of a type suitable for this class of tenant. If after a time the tenants of these houses showed permanent improvement, they could be considered for transfer to normal houses.

Schedule.

Appended is a tabulated list of the houses inspected.
